

The FCC needs to consider the impact of the proposed regulations on the relationship of associations with its members. We rely on fax communications to communicate with many of our members concerning continuing professional education courses that we offer. They have demonstrated by paying membership dues that they are interested in our programs -- therefore having to obtain a written consent to communicate with them by fax makes no sense. We hope you will consider the unique relationship that associations have with members in your final regulations.